The Charges Against Hayes.

The case of Jeremiah Hayes, wanted in West Virginia to answer the charge of horse stealing came before Chief Justice Cartter this morning for the purpose of seeing whether or not be should be delivered up whether or not he should be delivered up on the requisition of the Governor of that State. Upon an examination it was found that the indictment was imperfect in many respects and the point was raised that it was invalid. Testimony was taken to prove the identity of Hayes as the man wanted and then the Chief Justice stated that he would give his decision to-mor-row morning. row morning.

Five Years for Larceny. On the night of the 3d of last March, while Peter J. Brett of New York was sitting in a chair in a drunken stupor in Cooley's pool-room, James F. Callahan picked a valuable diamond stud out of his shirt and subsequently sold it in Baltimore for $25. He was afterwards arrested, tried and convicted in the Criminal Court to-day of grand larceny and sent to the Albany Penitentiary for the wears.

the Albany Penlientiary for five years. Few Bibles Bought.

The revised edition of the Bible was for sale to-day in this city for the first time. A great many people called at the stores to look at them. Purchases of not a very large number of the good Book were made. The books on sale to-day were of a finer and more expensive kind than people as a rule want. Many orders were, however, made for the cheaper and popular edition which will be out in about a week.

Recent Burglaries.

The residence of R. B. Donaldson of 208 Eighth street southwest was entered by the rear window yesterday and robbed of clothing and a watch worth $55. Sylvester Burns' house, No. 917 Twenly-seventh street, was robbed on Wednesday night of $27 in money and a dress coat.

"BOB" ODLUM'S REMAINS. A Large Number Visit His Late Rest

After the Departments closed yesterday fternoon the residence of Mrs. Eschen brenner, where the remains of the dead nthlete, Odlum, lay, was thronged with callers to see the body, who continued ar riving until quite late at night. Probably no one person in private life here possessed so large a circle of personal friends and acquaintances, for "Bob" Odlum, as they affectionately knew him, was a man of such kind-hearted ways that he drew friends to him without effort on his part. It was noticeable that large numbers were attracted there, however, only through an idle, morbid curiosity, and of these, to their shame, a large proportion were fetheir shame, a large proportion were fe-funeral arrangements have been under the direction of Mr. Charles S. Moore, who remained at the house last night beside the body.

Early last evening Mrs. Odium, the aged mother of the dead man, and his sister, Mrs. Charlotto Smith, with the latter's son, arrived at Mrs. Eschenbrenner's, where they remained during the night in an upper room. Both remained for a while beside the remains, repeating the Catholic prayers for the dead, in which they were joined by Mrs. Eschenbrenner and her grown daughter. The grief of Catholic prayers for the dead, in which they were joined by Mrs. Eschenbrenner and her grown daughter. The grief of Mrs. Odlium and her daughter was so violently expressed in plaintive cries that it was deemed lest to trge their removal upstairs, where it was far on into the night before either became sufficiently calmed to control their feelings. The scene was a deeply painful one to witness. As early as 8 o'clock this morning the stream of callers began again, many of poor "Bob's" most intimate triends returning again and again to the coffin's side, Undoubtedly Poisoned.

A new feature has developed in the case of William Ross, who was acquitted on Monday of the charge of poisoning the family of Andrew Jackson because Jackson forbade him to associate with his son forbade him to associate with his daughter. It seems that the other articles of food in the Jackson household have been polsoned. Mrs. Bridget Norris bought some meal from Jackson and it killed thirteen of her chickens. She ate some mush made from it and it poisoned her. The District Chemist found arsenic in the fish and in the meal. The police have a theory and are working up thee see. have a theory and are working up the case. In a conversation with a Carrie reporter Professor De Smedt, the District Chemist, stated that arsenic and other poisons are too easily obtained by irresponsible people. He says the laws against the sale of such drugs are not rigid enough.

That Logan Salute.

"I know all of the fellows who fired that Logan salute," said an employe of the Treasury Department to-day, 'laughing, 'They did not want to fire it at any other time than they did—not much. They had a particular object in view, and they would not have fired the salute anywhere else than they did. You see every one of those fellows have been discharged from the Government employ on the ground that they have been offensive partisans. They wanted the President to wake from his sleep and hear them how! That's what they wanted."

The Cannoncers Surrender.

Alfred P. Cunningham and William Lee, the two men wanted by the police authorities for firing a salute in the White Lot Wednesday night last without a permit, came to the court this morning and gave themselves up on hearing that a warrant had been issued for their arrest. The case went over until to-morrow for a hearing. The charge is firing a gun within 200 yards of a dwelling.

Steele Mackaye's Theatre.

A further meeting of the committee of creditors of the American Theatre Building Company was held yesterday at the Lyceum Theatre, in New York, Brent Good, the president, presiding. Two propositions were submitted, one that the creditors should allow the theatre to pass into other control on condition that they were paid 25 per cent, of their claims; the other that the company be reorganized and new stock issued with which the creditors should be paid. The other proposition was agreed upon. It is understood that an offer has been made to cent the theatre for the summer for the purpose of theatre for the summer for the purpose of producing a revival of old English comedy. This ofter has not yet been accepted.

Mr. Schnopp, hearing some one walking about on the floor below, quietly descended the stairs, and found the negro helping himself to catables from the sideboard. He immediately grabbed the thief by the cost collar, and upon asking him what he wanted, the thief replied that he was hungry and wanted something to eat. He was carried to the station-house by Mr. Schnopp, where he gave the name of Charles Johnson and said he was just from New York. Upon being searched a razor and several penknives were found in his pockers. He was sent to Police Court this morning on a double charge, housebreaking and carrying concealed weapons.
